Summer 2018 Speaker Program

Program Topics

Making Legacy Asks Through Existing Relationships

Development officers with little or no legacy experience usually avoid planned giving completely. Paralyzed with fear of the unknown they avoid the conversation. "Let the experts handle it." Experienced professionals overly rely on generating qualified leads through marketing and communications. The legacy ask is infrequent at best. Whatever your situation, what's a staff member, professional advisor or volunteer to do?

Move beyond the direct mail check box. Actively make the legacy ask whether you are planned giving staff, a major gifts officer, the sole development person in your shop, a professional advisor, or other type of volunteer. Come hear Greg Lasonde weave the legacy ask and other elements into a presentation focused on leaving behind the old planned giving paradigm of being the "expert" to the relatively new world — legacy giving embraced and practiced beyond the confines of the planned giving officer and development department, and easily incorporated into any size organization.

Banking on the Future: Why Endowments?

This introductory session will provide details on organizational readiness, the administrative components you will need to launch and oversee an endowment, and methods used for building endowment through current and future (legacy/planned) gifts.
